

ABOUT THE STATE

HAPPENINGS OF INTEREST FROM DIFFERENT SECTIONS

Buyers in North Hero are paying 70 cents a bushel for onions.

The steamer Ticonderoga started from Burlington Tuesday for Isle La Motte to get a cargo of apples. Owing to the wind she was unable to land and abandoned her trip. It is expected that about 7,000 barrels of apples will be shipped from the islands this season.

Plans are on foot to establish a training table for the football men at Hamlin commons, the regular college eating hall at Middlebury college. This innovation and improvement in the athletic department of the college will mean much to the future of the athletics at Middlebury.

STORM DAMAGE TO TREES.

Was Considerable as the State Forestry Department Found.

The heavy wind of Sunday, September 26, was very unusual in Vermont, and besides the damage done to telephone lines, etc., which was perfectly evident to every one, it did much damage in the forest. Young stands on fairly deep soil suffered little, but several of the groups of timber, which escaped the fire in the old burn on Camel's Hump, were damaged, and young stands left unprotected by recent logging operations in this region were laid flat.

A tract near Putnamville, owned by C. C. Putnam & Son, has been marked by the forestry department and only the marked trees are being cut. The assistant state forester in charge of this work has been over the tract since this storm and made several interesting observations. He found that there were some windfalls on areas where the cutting had been completed. In volume, however, these would amount to much less than the volume of windfalls and breakage in that part of the stand where no cutting had been done. In no case were the windfalls on these areas so great as to make larger openings than will be reproduced naturally. Where the stand had been marked, but cutting not completed, it was almost always the marked trees which were broken or uprooted.

In spruce stands towards the top of the mountain where the forester anticipated danger of windfalls, and guarded against it by properly shaped groups, very little windfall was found. Considering that this wind was so much heavier than the average the forester in charge was gratified to find the tract in as good shape.

Weather Report for September.

Meteorologist W. A. Shaw of the U. S. weather bureau of Northfield reports the mean temperature for September in Northfield to have been 50 degrees, which is four degrees above the normal temperature for the month. The highest was 89 degrees, on the 15th, and the lowest was 30 degrees, on the 30th. The greatest daily range was 41 degrees, on the 24th, and the least daily range was eight degrees, on the 13th. The precipitation amounted to 1.36 inches, the normal for the month being 2.76 inches. The prevailing wind was from the south, the total movement 5,659 miles, the average hourly velocity seven miles, the maximum velocity 39 miles per hour, from the southwest, on the 26th. The month was made up of eight clear, 12 partly cloudy and 10 cloudy days. Precipitation in quantity sufficient to measure fell on 10 days. Solar hours were noted on the 4th and 25th, sleat on the 26th and 27, fog on the 3d, 15th, and 19th, 16th, 17th, 19th, 21st, 24th, light frosts on the 1st and 25th, and heavy frosts on the 23d and 30th.

INCREASES USE OF NATIONAL FORESTS

The New Statistics Show 18,342 "Special Use" Permits in Force, with Steady Rise in Business.

There were 18,342 special-use permits in force on the national forests on June 30 last, according to figures just compiled by the United States forest service to show the varied uses to which the public is putting the government land involved. The list includes 59 apiaries, two brick yards, 31 canneries, 39 cemeteries, nine churches, one cranberry marsh, 32 fish hatcheries, one golf links, 43 hotels, one astronomical observatory, ten fox and rabbit ranches, 1085 residences, 74 resorts and club houses, 57 stores, 16 municipal watersheds, three sanitariums, 500 sawmills, 163 schools, and 182 water power sites, with many other uses. Fees collected on 7,895 of these permits contributed a total of $175,849.90 to the general forest revenue, but 10,447 of the permits were issued without charge.

The permits cover more than 1,087,000 acres and 15,041 miles of right-of-way, granted for various purposes, these figures including 173,131 acres for municipal watersheds, 6,752 miles for telephone lines, and 80,593 acres and 1,919 miles for reservoirs, canals, pipe lines and other irrigation and domestic supply works. The steady growth of national forest business is shown in columns of yearly figures going back to the last century. Between 1891, when the first forests were established, and 1900 there were only six timber sales. The number in 1915 was 10,905. The number of free timber permits has risen from 283 in 1901 to 40,040 in 1915, and of grazing permits from 2,317 in 1901 to 30,610 in 1915. The special-use permits, which were only 298 up to the end of 1905, were increased by 5,657 in 1915, making a total during the last 11 years of 42,369. Of these 18,342 are now in force.
